

As a result of Violence Transformed, urban youth have exhibited their works along side those of established artists; visual and performing artists at different stages in their careers have created new works and presented existing ones to diverse audiences; arts organizations and community service providers have raised awareness of their activities; and, community after community has witnessed the power of art to transform the human environment.

Through Violence Transformed, risk is transformed to resilience and communities are recognized as havens of creative potential.

Please see our website violencetransformed.com for more information about this year's exhibits and events.
