Violence Transformed invites visual artists to participate in our 2017 season of events. Submitted work should address issues of violence, with emphasis on how art can address, challenge and help us overcome violence in the home, in the community and around the world!

Violence Transformed 2017 seeks entries in any medium for exhibition and/or digital projection at the Harriet Tubman Gallery, United South End Settlements, Boston, MA. Artists are invited to submit individual and collaborative works that confront and imagine alternatives to violence at local, national and international levels, that address issues of protest, refuge, survival and commemoration, and give expression to the power of art to heal our wounds and enrich our lives and our communities. Works that invite and stimulate dialogue across boundaries of nation, race and ethnicity, religious ideology (or lack thereof), politics, gender and sexual orientation are particularly welcome.

The audience for Violence Transformed exhibits include children, adolescents and adults of diverse backgrounds and communities. We are less interested, therefore, in graphic depictions of violence than in works that encourage reflection, awareness and community-wide engagement with the arts.
